Promptly at 8 o'clock Robert A. Wideman, chairman of the state central committee of the National Democratic party of New York, stepped to the front of the platform and opened the proceedings. He said that the good old ship Democracy was going on the rocks, when the Indianapolis convention took her in charge, placed competent men at her helm and was now manning her for the fight which would bury Bryanism, Watsonism and Sewallism so deep that "FRANE T. "Resolved. That we hereby request that John B. Thacher withdraw from the candidacy for the governorship so that the state committee may be enabled to select a candidate in perfect accord with the platform adopted by the Democratic convention at Chicago."

Senator Hill at once took the floor in opposition to the resolution, making an earnest appeal to have Mr. Thacher retained. His remarks occupied forty minutes, and it was after 11 o'clock when Senator Thomas F. Grady took the floor.

Mr. Grady was equally emphatic in urging the withdrawal of Mr. Thatcher, so that a candidate eagnestly favoring free coinage may be substituted.

"After paying this just and well deserved tribute to Mr. Cleveland, the convention further said in its assertion of party principles. The Democratic party is pledged to equal and exact justice to all men of every creed and condition; to the largest freedom of the individual, consistent with good government; to the preservatiopn of the federal government in its constitutional vigor, and to the support of the states in all their just rights; to economic and public expenditures; to the maintenance of the public credit and sound money, and it is opposed to puternalism and all class legislation."

The delegates to the Indianapolis convention, as I have said, were Democrats—not Republicans or Populats. (Applause.) Before the assemblage of the Chicago convention, they desired and hoped for the unity of this great and historic party, and they would have MADE ANY ORDINARY SACRIFICE in order to maintain that unity. But when they saw the work of that convention, they had no further hope, and felt constrained to announce to the country. That the declarations of the Chicago convention attacked individual freedom, the right of private contract, the independence of the judiciary, and the authority of the president to enforce federal laws. They advocate a reckless attempt to increase the price of silver by legislation to the debasement of our monetary standard, and threaten unlimited issues of paper money by the government. They abandon for Republican allies the Democratic cause of tariff reform to court the favor protectionists. In view of their fiscal heresy and other grave departures from Democratic principles, we cannot support the candidates of that convention nor be bound by its acts. The Democratic party has survived many defeats. MADE ANY ORDINARY SACRIFICE but could not survive a victory won in behalf of the doctrine and policy pro-claimed in its name at Chicago." "It will be seen that the convention was not composed of Democrats who would first vote the ticket and then read the platform. Nor was it composed of that

who seemed to flourish with so much vigor in this noble state of New York. It would not be possible for any delegate to that convention to vote for the candidates nominated in Chicago and reject the platform as unsound and dangerous. It, therefore, spoke in no uncertain terms in condemnation of the platform adopted by the conventions in Chicago and St. Louis. "The Chicago convention was regularly called, and if it had adhered to the faith, the organization which I represent would have been entirely unnecessary. Indeed, thousands of Democratis today have such respect for orderly and regular organization that they feel amost constrained to the action of the Chicago convention, is but natural. That convention assembled, claiming to be a regular Democratic principles.

DUNDEE, Scotland, Sept. 22.—An immense crowd of people greeted the czar and czarina hers. The lord provost of Dundee made a brief address of welcome to the czar, and the czar said: "We thank you most cordially for your kind wishes."

The special convention, and thousands of us who resist its action do so only because it was perfectly false to Democratic principles.

No Democrat can object to the condemnation of the Chicago platform of arbitrary interference by federal authority in local affairs. So much is the well-understood Democratic theory of the properrelations existing between the state and the general government. But the real meaning is well understood to have been intended as an endorsement of the governor of Hilnois (hisses), and a condemnation of the president for acts which were umanimously approved by the senate of the United States and were in strict conformity with his duty as the chief magistrate of the republic.

That part of the platform which refers to the money question attracts the largest measure of popular attention, and it is to that clause of the Chicago platform and the corresponding clause of the platform adopted by the Indianapolis convention that I propose to direct attention briefly.

"I repeat the statement that the Indianrealist convention in convent ferms as-"I repeat the statement that the Indianapolis convention, in general terms, asserted the true relation of the Democratic party to the interests of this great country. The Chicago platform declares and recognizes that the money question is paramount to all others at this time. The silver, builton and coin, and indeed all commercial silver, to equality in commercial silver, to equality in commercial value with gold.

"The real question then is, can the American people by a naw authorizing the unlimited coinage of silver dollars on private account at the ratio of 16 of silver to 1 of gold, with full legal tender quality for all orbits and dues, public and private, make the silver coinage of the world of equal power in the markets and in the payment of debts with all the gold coined in the world? This statement of the question is made in unusual form, but neither its truth nor its exactness will be questioned by any thoughful man, after he has fully considered the rapid methods of modern intercommunication and the actienties of commercial life. (Applause,) In my judgment results such as I have described are

Well, let us look at the record of the proceedings. My distinguished leader has told you it was called regularly; though it may in some respects have been regular, the Chicago convention was revolutionary at the conclusion. There was a defection of those delerates from the party to the opposition and to the adoption of principles against which we have contended for one hundred years. The regularity was that of another proceeding of which we have in history. We are told that Benedict Arnold was regularly commissioned by the cemennial congress as a major-general in the continental army. Senator Shoup returned to Idaho tonight, to continue his work for the Republican national ticket, and, incidentally, to be on hand when the second state convenition of the silver Republicans is held next Saturday. The senator said:

"I learned by a telegram from Idaho this morning that a new convention has been called by Dubois. I think the boiters will substitute the fusion numbrees for their own on the state ticket, and if they do that I claim the suprocess of Marke.
